THE SHINE CAREER SCHOOL

Where every girl can achieve her dreams.

The D. Gary Young, Young Living Foundation is funding the Hope for Justice Shine Career School in Phnom Penh, Cambodia. This inspiring school offers intensive high school classes to girls who have been rescued from human trafficking. In addition to education, Hope for Justice arranges training for rescued girls in nearly any career field they choose. Whether they want to become a chef, fashion designer, or a photographer, the staff works to ensure the girls receive specialized career training opportunities that allow them to pursue their dreams.

A WORLD FREE FROM SLAVERY.

Hope for Justice's ultimate goal is to live in a world free from slavery, and we believe in it. With more than 20 million slaves in the world—more than half of which are women and girls—human trafficking is one of the most devastating social issues of our time. The time to end it is now—in this generation.
